EQUAL SUFFRAGE
GOES TO SENATEKeystone Women Confident Legislation Will Pass

HOUSE APPROVES, 131 TO 70

If Legislature Indorses Amendment It Goes to Next Legislature, a Second
Indorsement Sending It to People.

The state senate, often referred to as the "graveyard" for legislation, will now get the constitutional amendment giving equal suffrage to women. The suffragists in Harrisburg who are in jubilant mood because the house indorsed the proposition are confident the amendment will meet with the approval of the august senate.

The vote in the house agreeing to the amendment was 131 to 70. If the senate passes the legislation and the next legislature again approves the question will go to the people in 1915.

Representative Rockwell of Tioga, father of the resolution, made a plea for its acceptance.

"Nine states now have equal suffrage on all elections and twenty on many elections," he said. "Submitting the question of woman suffrage to the voters was indorsed by the republican and democratic state conventions. It is a question that has created much interest in many states, and New York's house and senate have just passed a resolution by a small vote against it. I hope Pennsylvania's members will pass it without a single opposing vote."

A movement to get the laws of Pennsylvania into comprehensive shape and to prevent the enactment of many others that would add to the chaotic condition of the statute books was started in the house. A resolution fixing Saturday of this week as the final date for the presentation of new measures and a bill for codification of the general laws of the commonwealth made its appearance.

The resolution limiting the time for presentation of bills was presented by Representative Ullman, Democrat, of Lycoming county.

The Anti-Saloon league's local option bill was presented by Representative Frank H. Rockwell of Tioga. Two units are provided for in the legislation. One applies to boroughs and cities containing a population of 10,000 or more, while the other takes in remaining territory in a county.

The law and order committee will take up the local option legislation at an early date and determine whether the Rockwell or Walton bill is to be recommended. The Walton measure was introduced by the Lawrence county legislator and is a duplicate of the 1904 bill of two years ago. It makes boroughs, townships and wards the unit, while the Rockwell legislation fixes boroughs and cities of 10,000 or more population as one unit and townships and boroughs of less than 10,000 another division.

The law and order committee reported the following bills with affirmative recommendations:

To prevent the peddling of beer and whisky.

The anti-treating bill.

The Stein bill, to permit a wholesale or retail liquor dealer to keep his place of business open while the license transfer is pending.

The Swift bill, assessing a tax on owners and lessees of disorderly houses.

The Democratic "corrupt practices" act was presented by Mr. Matt Bedford. It limits expenses of candidates as follows:

United States senators, $12,500; governor, $10,000; congressmen, $3,500; senators, $1,000; representatives, $500, and all other candidates not over 50 per cent of salary for first year.

Newspaper advertising and personal letters are permitted and all other expenses are stipulated. Candidates not filing accounts cannot have names printed on the official ballot.

Among measures passed finally by the house were:

Davis joint resolution proposing an amendment to the state constitution so as to permit special legislation regulating labor.

Moses bill, providing for an additional law judge in Cambria county.

Davis bill, extending the act of 1895, providing that territory annexed to any third class city shall constitute a part of the poor district of such city or of the poor district of which the city is a part.

The Lovers resolution for the appointment of a commission to investigate labor troubles at Braddock and Rankin passed and will now go to the senate for concurrence.

President Wilson

JOSEPH P. TUMULTY.

Mr. Tumulty was private secretary to Mr. Wilson from the beginning of his term as governor of New Jersey in January, 1911, until November, 1912, when the governor made him clerk of the supreme court for a term of five years at an annual salary of $6,000, $2,000 more than he had been receiving. He has continued to act as private secretary to Governor Wilson without salary.

INQUIRE INTO OIL ADVANCE

Federal Official's Seek Reason For Raise in Price.

The soaring price of crude oil is being investigated by the department of justice in connection with its inquiry to determine whether the decrease dissolving the Standard Oil company has been violated.

The government wants to know whether any of the former subsidiaries of the trust have created conditions responsible for the rise and whether there has been concerted action. Information in possession of the department alleges that some of the big companies have a year's supply of crude oil in their tanks and that the present high price does not affect them, but is a burden on smaller concerns.

The entire oil investigation, in all probability, will be completed before the end of February and a report submitted to Attorney General Wickersham by Charles B. Morrison and Oliver E. Pagan, the attorneys in immediate charge of the inquiry.

AMERICAN EAGLE A HEN!

Secret of Bird on the Dollar Revealed by Suffragist.

"The American eagle is a hen. When the colonial fathers chose this national emblem they selected the female of the species because of its great beauty and apparent greater strength."

This dark secret, which men have long kept from women, one of the many things which the suffragettes are finding out for themselves, she said, Miss Mary Johnston, author of "To Have and to Hold," disclosed during an address at the state suffrage headquarters in New York.

F. O. BEACH ACQUITTED

Found Not Guilty by Aiken (S. C.)
Jury of Attacking Wife.

At Aiken, S. C., Frederick O. Beach was acquitted of the charge of assaulting his wife, Camilla Haven Beach, with intent to kill. The jury deliberated one hour and forty-five minutes.

Neither Mr. Beach nor his wife were in the courtroom when the verdict was read. He came in a few minutes later and shook hands with the jury-men and thanked them. He said that he had never for a moment believed that twelve men could have brought in any other verdict.

FEAR OF DEATH
MALTS PROBERockefeller Too Weak to Submit to Examination

MAGNATE ON VERGE OF SPASM

After Twelve Minutes of Questioning by Pujol Committee Rockefeller Becomes Speechless—Shakes of Palsy.

After an examination of twelve minutes by Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the Pujol committee, William Rockefeller, the aged Standard Oil magnate, showed signs of a laryngeal spasm and indications of an approaching nervous collapse. At the insistence of his physician the examination was discontinued. The examination took place on Jekyll Island, off Brunswick, Ga.

When Mr. Rockefeller's right hand went up to take the oath his arm shook like a leaf. When he repeated the words of the oath the muscles of his face began to give way. Mr. Pujol moved nervously in his chair and his nervousness was reflected in Mr. Untermyer. Mr. Rockefeller handed a paper to the stenographer with the whispered request that it be read. Here is the text:

"I am urgently advised and warned by my physicians that this examination is attended with very serious danger on account of the precarious condition of my throat. I desire, however, to make the effort as I have not now and never have had any disposition to avoid testifying before your committee except as I have been questioned by my physicians that doing so would endanger my life. If I find that the strain is too great for me to take further risk I shall have to ask your indulgence in not pressing the examination further."

"As I have lost my voice I would deem it a privilege to make my answers to the official stenographer who sits beside me and who will read them aloud. It is impossible for me to write them."

"Do you recall the occasion of the organization of the Amalgamated Copper company in 1887?" was the first question.

"I do," Mr. Rockefeller replied.

"Was it in 1887?"

"With a great effort Mr. Rockefeller replied 'I think it was in 1889.' He did not complete the sentence. The action of the muscles of his face and the secretion from his mouth evidently presaged the choking spell which Dr. Chappell feared. The physician intervened. Dr. Chappell said:

"Mr. Chairman—I would like to take the liberty of demanding your attention to Mr. Rockefeller's condition. He is showing some symptoms which precede the spasms of the larynx and I strongly advise you not to proceed, as in doing so you are endangering his life. Since my appearance before the committee in Washington a new and more serious development has occurred in Mr. Rockefeller's throat. You can see his general shaking now and he is now on the verge of a spasm of the larynx which might choke him."

Mr. Rockefeller dropped back into his chair with a weak tired expression as he heard the physician say that his end might be at hand. He looked pitifully from the chairman to the attorney for the verdict.

Mr. Pujol arose as a man in the midst of a stern duty and insisted that Dr. Chappell swear that death might result from a continuation of the examination. Dr. Chappell did.

Chairman Pujol then made the following formal statement for the record: "The chair states that, in view of the declaration by Dr. Chappell under oath and also of the witness that no further proceedings will be had at this time."

CHEESE GOES BUT NOT HAT

Woman Runs Afoul of Parcel Post
Regulations With Millinery.

The first parcel post package to be refused by the Warren (Pa.) postoffice was a woman's hat. The hat was of the picture variety and, of course did not come within the government specifications.

Although the hat could not pass, a brick of Limburger cheese was accepted a short time afterward, and as it passed through the red tape system left an odoriferous wake.

Vassar Girl Drowned.

While five Vassar college students were coasting down Sunset hill the to-yogan got beyond their control and ran out onto the thin ice of a pond, breaking through the ice and precipitating all five girls into the water. One of the number, Miss Elizabeth C. Mylod, daughter of John J. Mylod of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was drowned and the other four girls were saved after a desperate struggle.

Solon Invites Women's Ire.

Representative Hay introduced in the Missouri legislature a bill prohibiting women from wearing dresses that button up the back unless the buttons be as large as a dollar. The bill provides for a fine of $1 to $3 with a jail sentence for persistent offenders.

Webb Liquor Bill Passes.

The Webb bill to prohibit the interstate shipment of liquor into dry states in violation of state laws was passed by the national house of representatives, 240 to 65.

SERUM ENOUGH FOR 40

Pittsburg Physician Brings Home Dr.
Friedmann's Tuberculosis Cure.

Dr. Austin B. Held of Pittsburg, who less than a month ago left for Berlin, Germany, with the remote hope of inducing Dr. F. F. Friedmann, the German scientist, who says he has discovered a cure for tuberculosis, to part with enough of his find to treat the Pittsburg physician's wife, returned home with enough of the turtle serum in his possession to treat forty persons. This is the first of this serum brought to America.

However, it was not Dr. Friedmann's generosity that may enable Dr. Held to prolong forty lives, perhaps more, but Dr. F. Piorkowski, a noted German bacteriologist who has made all Dr. Friedmann's cultures for him and managed to lift the latter's discovery.

$16,000 Given Woman.

One of the largest verdicts ever returned in the courts of Pittsburg against the Pittsburg Railways company was recorded when a verdict for $16,000 was returned in favor of Mr. and Mrs. John Auterheide for injuries sustained by the latter when she was struck by a car. Her right leg was paralyzed and she was forced to remain in bed for a year and incurred a doctor bill of $2,000, according to the testimony.

Gold Ring Found in Cow.

A cow belonging to Ira Williams of Corydon, Pa., died and not till after its death was it ascertained what was the matter. The cow was cut open and a gold ring was found on the inside case around the heart. It is supposed the cow swallowed the ring which worked through the stomach into the lining of the heart.

Girl Attempts Suicide.

Miss Rose O'Malley of Pittsburg was found unconscious from escaping gas in a hotel in Philadelphia. At the Jefferson hospital she was finally brought around. She was arrested charged with attempting suicide and being a runaway. The girl begged the detectives not to notify her parents.

$100,000 Fire at Orwigsburg, Pa.

Fire destroyed the factory of the Orwigsburg (Pa.) Box Manufacturing company and the F. J. Zulick & Co. shoe factory, entailing a loss of upward of $100,000. High winds threatened the destruction of the town. The fire department of Pottsville came to the aid of the local fire fighters.

Girl Takes Poison After Quarrel.

Miss Helen Smith, aged twenty, whose home is supposed to have been in Wellsboro, O., died at the Shenando Valley hospital, New Castle, Pa., as a result of poisoning. It is alleged that a quarrel with a young man was the cause of the young woman's act.

Newspaper Plant Damaged by Fire.

Damage estimated at $50,000 was caused by fire in the building occupied by the Erie (Pa.) Evening Herald. The blaze which started in the stock and file rooms is said to have been of spontaneous combustion origin. Much damage was done by water.

Oil $2.50 a Barrel.

Several months ago it was predicted that Pennsylvania crude oil would go to $2.50 a barrel and that prediction was fulfilled when the Joseph Seep Purchasing agency, a Standard Oil subsidiary, advanced quotations three cents a barrel.

MADERO REMAINS IN CONTROL

Generals Diaz and Reyes Released
From Prison, Reyes Being Killed
Shortly Afterward by Rifle Bullet

After a day of terrific resistance to mutinous troops Francisco Madero is still president of Mexico. The capital, echoed to the incessant discharge of rifles and the crash of machine guns as the partisans of Colonel Felix Diaz of General Mondrago, of the dead Reyes and the other insurrectionists struggled to pierce the defenses of the national palace.

Two hundred have been killed in one day's fighting and among the dead are three Americans, two women and one man. More than 500 persons were wounded.

The Plaza Constitution and the streets leading to the Alameda were strewn with the dead and wounded.

For forty-eight hours the fate of the Madero government and the life of the president have hung in the balance.

The death of Reyes who was killed by a rifle ball that issued from a door in the national palace that few but the president himself ever uses and the gallantry of Madero himself, who against the protests of his brothers and friends mounted a white horse and galloped up and down encouraging his loyal troops, served to check the advance of the revolutionists.

There can be no doubt that the army is honeycombed with treachery, that Diaz has the support of most of the faction leaders and that the assaults on the palace will be renewed.

An account of the beginning of the revolt follows:

Late Saturday night the soldiers of the local garrison revolted and captured the powder magazine in a suburb about six miles from the city. Before daylight Sunday morning the First cavalry and other soldiers of the garrison formed and marched to the Zocalo plaza in perfect order. On their way to the national palace the soldiers captured and disarmed all policemen.

At the palace, which was in charge of federals and the cadet corps, the cavalry was welcomed and some of the palace guard joined the revolt and all indulged in shouts of "Viva Diaz!"

Machine guns had been mounted on the roof of the palace and many soldiers were crowded into the towers of the cathedral and all of them appeared in sympathy with Diaz. The first cavalry commander to arrive, surveying the situation at the palace and believing it strongly enough guarded, ordered his regiment to proceed to the penitentiary and there demanded the immediate release of Generals Felix Diaz and Bernardo Reyes.

Both of these men were then taken to the palace by the troops followed by crowds shouting for Diaz and Reyes and "Death to Madero!" Their arrival at the palace was marked by the enthusiastic thousands of common people thronging continually into the Zocalo plaza, on the east side of which stands the governmental buildings.

The cavalry, about 500 strong, and the infantrymen lined up the full length of the palace, almost 700 feet. Other troops were lying on the paving in skirmish order. A body of mounted police was stationed at the south end of the palace where Diaz stood watching.

Suddenly the south door of the palace known as the president's door flashed open and from within came the report of a rifle. At the same moment General Reyes standing near Diaz crumpled into a heap. He had been shot through the head and died instantly.

His death was the signal for a general fight. In an instant the machine guns on the roof of the cathedral began spitting their hail of lead and steel and simultaneously the artillery which had approached from the south began an attack on the cavalry.

The mob in the streets swung about and beat a hasty retreat for any kind of shelter. In a minute or two the plaza was filled with the dead and dying. Everywhere a pool of blood marked the place where bullets had found a mark and where the shriek and the solid shot of the field guns worked carnage.

Gustavo Madero, brother of the president, who recently returned from a diplomatic mission to Japan, was made a prisoner by the mutineers. The rebels have a stronger hatred for him than for the president. Gustavo was granted many concessions and money by the government and the rebels charge that he went to Japan to sell that nation a Pacific coast coal station to raise money to fight the rebels.
